A MEMORIAL from MU-T'U. SHAN, the Military Gazette of the 22nd ultimo, affords some further information with respect to the gradual overflow of the Chinese population of the northern provinces into Manchuria. Kirin is a province of Manchuria, and was formerly inhabited solely by Tartars. It has always civilian authorities were at one time immigrants, which commenced some sixty or three sub-prefects, two of a higher and one of an interior degree, should be stationed in the province, together with some minor officials, for the special purpose of adjudicating the questions that might arise between the Manchus and Chinese. But this arrange. ment has now proved inadequate, owing to the great increase of the Chinese population, and the Military Governor reports that the lack of a sufficient proportion of officials has made itself injuriously felt, and changes and additions to the staff are decidedly called for. "The province is not," he proceeds, "on case had been proved, as no doubt, judging from the owners by their agents that the whole meantime. the same footing as Shengking in respect of existing civilian jurisdictions, and the little beat of the man he threw overboard, "their liability in respect of the neglect or of the gaol, went into a brazier's shop and stole proposals that have been advanced on be induced him, by promises of payment, to default on the part of the captain, pilot, or a new brass smoking pipe. The subject is not a particularly pleasant of inviting one, but it is of some importance, which must be sufficient excuse for our adverting to it. Dr. WHARBY had, it seems, preserved the contents of the deceased's stomach in a jar for analysis and to make the analysis, however, be found it tad been thrown away. The result was that an important piece of evidence was completely lost. Dr. WHARRY stated great pity that he should have deviated from others. Tae dispenser excuses himself by saying he thought it was done with and smelt offensively. But surely it would not have occasioned him very much trouble to have asked whether he might throw it away. There ought to be some rule laid down for the future whereby such accidents may be avoided. In instance, the analysis would probably not but that has nothing to do with the general argument. The same thing might have bappened in a case where it would have proved the one link in the chain of evidence needed to bring home the crime to some person. The medical evidence in all such cases is of the highest importance, and nothing in connection with post-mortem examinations should be left to chance. It is to be hoped that the circumstance may serve as a warning for the future, and that some stringent rules for the guidance of the dispenser in such matters may be framed.

> > CHINESE SERVANTS.

The very limited extent to which Chinese is studied by foreigners resident at the onen ports. has one most unpleasant but perfectly natural rosult. The native servants use language in the Nicholas Murphy. This reprint brings down not dare for an instant so much as dream of using, did foreiguers understand. As the author of " Glimpses of Travel " wittily observes, the Ohinese do not "ewear." owing to a defective theology; but they do not scruple to give utterance to the grossest obscenities in speaking one to another, and that in the act of waiting upon their foreign masters. Nor are their modes of expression in speaking of their employers in any way less objectionable. It is not at all ugusual for a house boy! in reply to the question of a visitor, to bawl out to the coolie or gate man-" Is the woman at home?"-refer ing, of course to the lady of the house: while them, applied to their masters and mistresses, are a perfect study. "The small devil "-" the four-oved dog "-the gentlman referred to being in the habit of peering over his spectacles—are among the most complimentary of the series others are quite unreproducible. Such a thing would be impossible in India or Japan, where overybody understands the native dialect. Here, the servants take advantage of their masters ignorance; even pushing their effrontery so far, in some houses, as to wait at table short coats and exposed nether-garments, which is just as great an outrage upon decency as if a European footman were to present himself in Le drawing-room in his shirt-sleeves, or con fined his allowance of broudcloth entirely to waistcoat and a jacket. Some servants, again, address their musters unceremoniously as "you" -instead of speaking in the third person, with the respect they would show to a Chinese gentleman. But while foreigners permit such lackes we can hardly blame the natives for taking advantage of their nonchalance. If it be true in Europe, even, that no man is a hero to valet, it is painful to contemplate the poo figure be must out out here, in the eyes of his house boy or his cook.—Shanghai Courier.

THE QUEEN'S ADVISERS. It is now, says Vanity Fair, very well under tood, and, indeed, it was industriously conveyed to all members of the House of Commons just before the late division, that the idea of making an Imperial addition to the Royal title originated with her Majesty; and the division list itself shows that those members are of this opinion who might be expected to have their mot d'ordre from the Court, and to be auxious to show a lively gratitude for past or a lively expectation of future Court favours. Moreover, it is equally clear that in spite of the so-called "anccess" of the Government, the project has proved a fiasco, for the unanimity which could alone make the assumption of the title decent and proper, has been markedly wantingderstand, play in the Public Gardens on Friday consignments with the marks and initials, to be growbar under false pretences, saying he wanted to the amount of about tacks one thousand, worst of all, the one object in view, which was next (weather permitting) and every alternate conveyed to Hongkong and delivered after safe it for a priest at Wanchi, where he was working, The wounded pawn broker still entrives his to give the Royal Princes and Princesses a brevet rank of "Imperial Highness." has been perforce abandoned in the face of the strong Court. objections falt to it on all sides.
